Objectives of the FDP:

Since December 2019, when the first case of COVID- 19 (the illness caused by SARS CoV-2) was detected in Wuhan, the capital city of Hubei province of China, the world ceased to remain the same. The endemic caused by the virus has turned normal life upside down; the very existence of humanity came under threat. A large part of Europe, the USA, Africa and Asia are still grappling with containing the virus. India, with a population of more than 1.3 billion has done fairly well in restricting its spread, adopting the tactics of social distancing through lock down, but the strategy had its side effects too. It affected every aspect of human life including the education system. The educational institutions across the country were shut down and it is not certain when they will reopen. Universities face impact in terms of a slowdown in student internships and placements. Student counselling operations are also affected. Structure of schooling and learning includes teaching and assessment methodologies and due to closure, it will be affected.

Again this is not the first endemic in the history of the country, nor shall it be the last. Therefore, this is the proper time to find a permanent solution in case of such a situation.

Technology may play an important role in such situations. Digitalization of the education system may be a method to resolve the existing problem. The proposed faculty development programme is an attempt to inculcate capacity of applying digital tools and technology among the teachers.
